CIVIL NO.:

RE:

BREACH OF CONTRACT;
DIVERSITY JURISDICTION

TRIAL BY JURY DEMANDED

COMPLAINT

COMES NOW Plaintiff, JOSE IGNACIO RODRIGO FERNÁNDEZ (“Mr. Rodrigo” or “Plaintiff”), through the undersigned attorney, and very respectfully, states, alleges and requests as follows:

INTRODUCTION

1. This is a civil action brought by Plaintiff, Jose Ignacio Rodrigo Fernández, against Seaborne Puerto Rico, LLC, d/b/a Seaborne Airlines (“Seaborne”), Seaborne's insurer, and against any other individual or entity whose identity is still unknown at this time, but who are liable in whole or in part for the unilateral, unexpected and unexplained breach of an international transport contract to transport Plaintiff by airplane from San Juan, Puerto Rico to Santo Domingo, Dominican Republic on June 18th, 2016, as guaranteed by Puerto Rico Law and the Treaties signed by the United States of America.

2. On June 18th 2016, Plaintiff was traveling from San Juan to Madrid, and for this purpose, he purchased an airline ticket issued by Seaborne for travel between San Juan and Santo Domingo in flight BB4519 leaving San Juan at 18.50, boarding at 18.30 and on flight UX 0088 operated by Air Europa and departing Santo Domingo at 21.25 and boarding at 20.30.

3. As a threshold matter, and in order to shed light on the nature and extent of Seaborne's contractual breach, it is essential to highlight that Seaborne (i) waited until the very last minute, before the flight scheduled departure time, to inform Plaintiff that Seaborne was not going to honor its contractual commitment to transport plaintiff to Santo Domingo, and therefore, Plaintiff was going to lose his flight to Madrid on June 18th; and (ii) Defendants failed to provide a contractually justifiable explanation for the flight cancellation, including but not limited to mechanical failures in the aircraft or inadequate weather conditions.

4. Plaintiff is a Spanish national of fifty-eight (58) years who travels regularly between San Juan and Madrid, and was obliged to be present in Madrid on June 19th, both for professional and family reasons.

5. - Plaintiff will prove that Seaborne and defendants acted consciously and wantonly contrary to the Treaties and laws, which protect any passenger against any unexpected and unexplained breach of the transport contract without the existence of inadequate weather conditions or mechanical difficulties.

7. - Plaintiff will also prove that he has filed an administrative complaint against Seaborne before the Federal authorities.

8.- Plaintiff will also demonstrate that requested monetary compensation for the breach of the contract, with adequate response, so he was left with no other option than to resolve the instant dispute in this Honorable District Court.

FACTUAL ALLEGATIONS

20. Plaintiff paid a ticket with Air Europa and Seaborne from San Juan, Puerto Rico to Madrid, for June 18, 2016, leaving at SJU 18.50 destination Santo Domingo and arriving at 20.05 to take flight UX 88 departure at 21.25 and Arriving on June 19 to Madrid at 11.30.

21. The flight from San Juan to Santo Domingo is operated by Seaborne with the number BB4519.

22. Plaintiff checked in with Seaborne and obtained his boarding pass at the airport of San Juan on 6/18/2016 at 14:10 for flight UX3088 (operated by Seaborne BB4519) to Santo Domingo to embark destination Madrid at 20.25. Attached as Exhibit II.

23. At 18.10 p.m., without prior notice or explanation, Seaborne cancelled flight BB4519.

24. Seaborne did not give any explanation, just that the flight was cancelled. The Defendants did not raise the current weather conditions or mechanical failures of the aircraft as the reasons for the cancellation.

25. Plaintiff sent several e-mails to Seaborne employee Wesley Pagán at wesly.pagan@seaborne.com, which acknowledged the breach of contract and apologized for the harm caused by Seaborne. Several e-mails were sent and received on June 18th to 19th. Attached as Exhibit III.

26. After two hours waiting at the airport, Seaborne told Plaintiff that they were going to accommodate him at the Airport Hotel, which was not possible, since it was already full. Then they told Plaintiff that they will send him to the Marriot Courtyard located in Miramar, but there was only one room and two passengers were left unaccommodated, so Plaintiff gave the room to the other passenger and left for his apartment. Defendants did not pay Plaintiff for his transportation services.

27. Plaintiff had to rent a car for a day for $ 92.68, plus pay the 5 international calls to Air Europa, plus the dinner on 18/6 and the breakfast and lunch on 19/6. Attached as Exhibit IV.

28. The next morning Plaintiff called Air Europa, and at 9.25 a.m., was accommodated on the flight from San Juan to Madrid on June 19 at 21.25. Defendants did nothing to solve the problem. He arrived in Madrid at 11.30 on the 20th of June, with a delay of 24 hours.

29. At 12.25 a.m., on June 19, Plaintiff received an email from Seaborne informing him that "it was already arranged", when the truth of the matter is that the situation was solved directly by Plaintiff, with no help from the Defendants.

30. The behavior of Seaborne has been of contempt to the passenger, and reckless disregard for the passenger's personal situation. Mr. Rodrigo was not even provided with a simple explanation regarding the alleged reasons that gave rise to the cancellation of the flight, without prior notice. There were no meteorological or mechanical reasons and Seaborne did not justify the cancellation with any valid or legitimate reason.

31. Plaintiff sent an extrajudicial complaint by e mail to Air Europa on June 20th, 2016.

32. Air Europa acknowledged receipt on June 21st, 2016 and replied on August 8th 2016, imputing all liability to Seaborne. Said document is attached as Exhibit V.

After making the appropriate inquiries, we were acknowledged that on June 18, you send a written to the Department of Reclamation of the United States, so I have reported on the basis of its claim, the operating company Seaborne that is the operator of the canceled flight, which will manage your claim as they communicated to us.

33. - Plaintiff address a complaint at the U.S. Department of Transportation the same June 18th, 2016, processed as DD2016060109 stating

I obtained my boarding pass at 14.10 p.m. Boarding time was 18.30. Without prior notice, at 18.10 the flight was cancelled. I lost my connection to Madrid, which was in Santo Domingo at 20.25 with UX 0088. No prior notice or explanation was given to me.

It was answered on June 21. Attached as Exhibit VI.

34. - On August 11, 2016, Seaborne send an e mail to Plaintiff referring to the complaint as a mere refund of funds, which was not what Plaintiff has addressed. David Potosnak, Customer Relations Manager, subscribed said communication. Attached as Exhibit VII stating

Good Day Mr. Rodrigo, have reviewed your request for refunding the unused portion of your tickets. A refund needs to be done through the booking agent used when you purchased the tickets whether it be a travel agent or another airline I am not sure.

To further explain, when a reservation is not made and paid direct to the airline and a third party or travel agency/booking agent is used airline monies are held in a central clearinghouse. When the passenger travels on the specific tickets, the monies are released the respective airlines. When a flight is cancelled and a passenger requests a refund, the booking agency or travel agent must request the refund of the airline. The airline gives their approval or denial. If approved, then the airline would provide a code to the Travel Agent. This code, called a waiver code, enables the travel agent to refund the passenger the designated monies to the original form of payment, and then re-charge or charge back to the airline for the refund. This is for tracking and accounting purposes.

Please contact the booking agent you used when you purchased your tickets and request your refund. I will process the 100.00 refund to day and it should take 10-12 business days to cycle back to your card.

35. - Plaintiff has suffered great personal and professional prejudice, because on June 19, 2016, he had his father of 92 years suffering from illness, and the possible birth of his granddaughter. Also, Plaintiff failed to comply with professional commitments scheduled for June 20, 2016, due to Seaborne's negligence and breach of contract.

36. - Therefore an indemnity is demanded of all the costs and damages suffered, and the reimbursement of all the expenses paid.
